We invest in local institutions — so that the women and communities we work with lead the change themselves.

01 ABOUT SORD

Who We Are

The Sudanese Organization for Research and Development (SORD) is a feminist, membership-based, non-profit Sudanese organization founded in 2007. We work for inclusion, gender equality, feminist peacebuilding and sustainable livelihoods — with women's rights at the heart of everything we do and a strong commitment to strengthening women-led and community-based organizations.

SORD follows a Humanitarian–Development–Peace Nexus approach: we respond to urgent crises while building long-term development and lasting peace. Gender equality, women's leadership and GBV risk mitigation are integrated across all our interventions.

Our work combines participatory action research, social exclusion analysis and collaborative partnerships with a broad range of civil society organizations. Rather than working alone, SORD acts as a facilitator and enabler — investing in local institutional capacity to advance gender justice, sustainable peace and social change in Sudan.

SORD is registered under Sudan's Voluntary and Humanitarian Work Act as a national, not-for-profit non-governmental organization, with its headquarters in Kassala — which coordinates country operations — and offices in Al-Gadaref, Red Sea and Blue Nile states.

Our Vision

A vibrant, feminist and informed civil society in Sudan, actively advocating for a civil state that recognizes and realizes gender equality.

Our Mission

SORD works with Sudanese women and men to ensure their dignity as responsible and accountable citizens. We achieve this through a rights-based, feminist approach, informed advocacy and capacity strengthening.

WHAT GUIDES US

Feminist

Women's rights and leadership at the centre

Rights-based

Dignity and accountability for all citizens

Inclusive

Challenging every form of exclusion

Locally led

Strong local institutions drive change

02 OUR OFFICES Where We Work

SORD is headquartered in Kassala and delivers its work through four offices in Eastern Sudan and Blue Nile, close to the communities it serves — including the large populations displaced by the war since 2023.

03 HOW WE WORK

Our Approach

The Humanitarian–Development–Peace Nexus

SORD bridges short-term crisis response and long-term development. The same communities we support in an emergency are the ones we work with to rebuild livelihoods, strengthen local organizations and build peace — with gender equality, women’s leadership and GBV risk mitigation woven through every intervention.

Participatory Action Research A

Research is done with communities, not about them. Findings shape our programmes and give women and marginalized groups evidence for advocacy.

Feminist Methodology B

- Interdisciplinary: includes diverse voices, especially of marginalized groups
- Critical: challenges patriarchal structures and gender-blind methods
- Gender & security: how gender roles shape conflict and peace
- Intersectional: race, class and other identities shape experience
- Inclusive processes: women in negotiations and decision-making
- Community-based: grassroots, locally owned solutions

Social Exclusion Analysis C

Our core tool for understanding exclusion, discrimination and injustice in Sudan’s societies and institutions. Through a large number of workshops since 2007, participants have examined their own attitudes and identified the main forms of exclusion — racism, sexism, ethnocentrism, religious and elitist discrimination, and the discrimination faced by refugees and displaced people.

Gender Equality at Every Level D

Gender equality is central to who we are and what we do — in policy, structures, practice and programming. Our gender policy commits adequate resources, monitors all work against gender indicators, and treats gender as everyone’s responsibility. For SORD, gender equality is only achievable when gender justice is backed by political commitment, resources and agents of change.

04 WHAT WE DO Programme Areas

Since 2007, SORD's work has grown into four interrelated programme areas. Across all of them, we put women's rights, inclusion and the strengthening of local organizations first.

34 PROJECTS

Inclusion, Gender Justice & Feminist Peacebuilding

Advancing women's rights, ending discrimination and putting women at the centre of peace processes — through legal aid, research, advocacy, coalition building and the Women, Peace and Security agenda.

21 PROJECTS

Livelihoods & Access to Resources

Building the economic resilience of women, youth, refugees and host communities through vocational skills, savings groups, micro-finance, agriculture and market linkages.

10 PROJECTS

Governance & Civil Society Strengthening

Investing in the institutional capacity of CSOs and networks, civic and voter education, safe migration, and the fight against discrimination.

8 PROJECTS

Humanitarian Response to the War

Since April 2023, responding to the needs of conflict-displaced women, girls and men with protection, psychosocial support, dignity kits, food, cash and shelter.
